Fracture-dislocation of the thoracic spine in a child. Fracture-dislocation of the thoracic spine in the child is a rare injury. We present two cases of such injuries in a 6-year-old boy and a 4-year-old girl, both of whom sustained anterior wedging fractures of the T8 vertebrae without neurological deficits. Both patients were successfully treated with closed reduction, spinal instrumentation, and posterior short-segment fixation. Collective action and democracy - yuenping ===== kingkawn Kind of surprising that they downplayed the competition effect ("the desire of people to be consciously part of the collective") that emerges "through the spread of social information and interpersonal contact" in the evolution of democracy. .
