When you use it, your whole screen becomes black and all other colors are white. As soon as you turn on your desktop, all elements become gray. Controls, all applications and menus turn white. Buttons turn black and do not respond to clicks. Windows and menus turn white. When you start working, all colors come back except for black, which stays forever. Then some parts go black. For example, all the windows I can open with my menu turn black, but I can use my keyboard/mouse to work. This happened to me after I added some new modules. I had a black text file/picture that I wanted to look at, and I wanted to use the window as a tool to find it. I opened it and all the black areas were black, but I could use the keyboard/mouse to run it. I was frustrated with this and wanted to know how to invoke the window so I could move it around but do nothing (empty window). Unfortunately, I couldn't find an answer to this problem and now I really can't figure out how to do it. I looked through some web pages, but couldn't find anything similar. I also tried "load window" but I get "Can't find the specified file" and that didn't work. I know I can access the file, but I can't start the window. I tried to find the file "desktop.ini" in the folder "C: \\ Windows \\ System32", but there were only the files that I had previously installed, and they all had the name "Windows.old". Looking for the "desktop.ini" file, I tried running "cmd" but that didn't work. What should I do I had the exact same problem with Windows 9 and had to delete the "desktop.ini" file to continue.
