AutoCAD Product Key began as a 2D drafting tool (2D drafting is still a prominent feature of AutoCAD), but the software evolved into a comprehensive 3D CAD application that supports 2D and 3D design and geometry. The software offers the following tools: 2D Drafting – Traditional 2D Drafting features a variety of 2D tools, including 2D modeling tools for drafting, measuring, and drawing, drawing management tools for the creation of layers and blocks, and dynamic annotation tools for quick and easy notes. 2D Design – 2D Design is AutoCAD's standard design tool. It has tools for creating and editing blocks, sketching and finalizing designs, measuring, and creating complex symbols. 3D Modeling and Design – 3D Modeling and Design offers a single software application for both 2D and 3D modeling and design. It features tools for creating and editing blocks, sketching and finalizing designs, measuring, creating complex symbols, and viewing and editing model elements. 3D Modeling and Design offers integrated support for the creation of different types of 3D drawings, including structural, piping, electrical, piping, and mechanical drawings. Architectural Design – AutoCAD offers a suite of design tools for creating architectural designs. It has tools for creating and editing 3D models, laying out plans and sections, and creating and editing architectural documents. Vector Graphics – AutoCAD offers a variety of vector graphics tools. The software's shape tools are used for creating a wide range of vector graphics elements. These include: basic shapes, arcs, compound shapes, freeform paths, and boolean operations. Grids and Transformations – A robust toolset for creating, editing, and converting to and from grids. AutoCAD also features tools for measuring, orienting, warping, and aligning on grids and surfaces. Bill of Materials – A tool for creating and editing an assembly drawing. This tool is used for designing and creating building assemblies. Views and Panoramas – A variety of viewing and panoramic views. These include 3D views, sectional views, isometric views, and hidden line views. Filters – Filters offer a variety of enhancements to 2D and 3D views. With respect to NOL, foreign investors and speculators held 11.4 per cent of all net NOL in 2011, against 8.7 per cent in 1990. Given the limited tax treatment of NOL (amounting to tax on NOL at the federal level and refund of the tax on profits at the provincial level), foreign investment in NOL has increased sharply. In 2005, the government of Saskatchewan initiated the use of the BDC for NOL (i.e. taxing the NOL from property with a tax at 30 per cent). This BDC could accumulate in ten years in a cost-effective manner, since the total tax that would be paid to the federal government would still be zero in the course of ten years. This is the main reason that foreign investors and speculators have been attracted to the province of Saskatchewan, because in 2006-2007, Saskatchewan became a NOL jurisdiction for both real and intangible property. This type of tax has allowed the provincial government to accumulate NOL and, in turn, to reduce the provincial debt. On the basis of the Saskatchewan BDC, the provincial government accumulated a NOL of more than US$15.1 billion in the period of 2005-2011. ca3bfb1094
