Oct. 13 (UPI) -- A Florida city's decision to ask residents to remove Halloween decorations in order to "promote a safe and harmonious environment for our children" has drawn strong criticism. This year, the city of Wauchula Beach decided to post mandatory "no decorations" signs and prohibit teens from decorating for the Oct. 31 holiday, WFLA-TV reported Monday. The reaction was swift: Tuesday, council members said they received more than 100 calls, emails and Facebook messages about the ban as well as a message from the governor saying the issue was a state matter, the Miami Herald reported. Mayor Bruce Ransom says if Wauchula Beach's ban does not stand up in court, it could affect enforcement of any similar policy by other Florida cities, the Gainesville Sun reported. The city said in a news release the mandatory sign-up was designed to reduce vandalism of other people's property and for the safety of children who might want to trick or treat, the newspaper reported. Residents can still decorate their homes with decorations that don't contain potentially toxic chemicals like glitter, face paint, balloons and purple lights. Ransom said Wauchula Beach had not had a Halloween tragedy in years, and its

Masters Masters of Puzzle - World We Know In search of the greatest masters of puzzling, we begin our travels in a direction you may not expect. When we think about puzzle games, we tend to think about the biggest names in the world right now - Tetris, Apples to Apples, Crossroads, Loco Roco. However, we know that long before these names, a plethora of different games have carried on the reputation of puzzle games throughout history, and they have now become favorites amongst every generation. If that's what you believe, then the first section of our game is now open for you - the World We Know. The rules: Each puzzle game holds one planet - so you start with one planet to work with. You must then complete the puzzles on Earth by inputting a valid code form every puzzle type on the planet. Your main goal is to complete the puzzles as quickly as possible to earn the highest score. Every puzzle's game will present the correct numbers that you would need to input for your puzzles to be completed. There are two types of puzzles you will encounter on the default Earth: Hard Puzzle - represents games where the number of moves are 3, 4 or 5 Easy Puzzle - represents games where the number of moves are 2 You have to solve the puzzle within 2 minutes. Don't worry! We will be assisting you. When you start a puzzle, there are five buttons available on the screen: Over - If you press the O key and don't place your cursor on a valid puzzle pieces, Under - If you press the U key and don't place your cursor on a valid puzzle pieces, Break - If you press the break key, you are allowed to release the puzzle piece you hold and receive 1 more move to solve the puzzle, Cancel - When you press the C key, the puzzle can be paused until you press Resume, or, use the Resume button, to continue playing the puzzle. Note: You may reset the puzzle by pressing the Reset button. There are almost always three valid pieces during each puzzle. You can also use the following keyboard commands, if your puzzle doesn't have an entry key or a valid puzzle piece. Arrows Left/Right - to move your cursor left or

The Barbary Coast is a strange, sprawling, pirate-infested utopia built on shifting sand. Ordered by the fickle winds and blown by shifting fortunes, Barbary Coast lies at the fringes of the Pirate Kingdoms. The island of San Felipe is a region of scattered fishing villages and hidden outposts; it sits just east of the Bay of Calabazas. When the island's fishing grounds were heavily depleted, the villagers and pirates settled here, maintaining a uneasy truce. But now, over a decade after the death of Jack Sparrow and the conclusion of the Second Barbary War, the old pact has disintegrated into chaos, and brigands from all across the South are pouring over the island like migrants, driven by a desperation to escape the carnage. Your character is the new sheriff of San Felipe: his name is Andy, and you're more or less in command of an all-new crew. You'll need to muster your new forces and establish dominance in the deserts, villages, and forested wilds of the island. They aren't alone: the brutes of San Felipe are wild and savage, untamed. Your allies will be the humans; the game lets you establish true friendship, but the world will not always listen. Their fates are intertwined - you, the human, and they, the humans. Your actions will dictate who lives and who dies - and who becomes your ally and who becomes your enemy. This is true play, not a sandbox simulation. How you use your influence will shape who lives and who dies. Follow the storms and factions of this strange new world, as you make choices in your quest to become King of San Felipe. `var myInput = document.getElementById('foobar'); myInput.value = ''; // This is a new line of code. this.input.acceptTab(); // It is one of the lines of code that has been marked as // potentially breaking, but can't be sure. myInput.value = 'foobar'; // It should not affect the output value. myInput.value = 'nope';`
