“This technology is a big step forward for FIFA,” said Alex Naddour, Game Director at 2K Sports. “We have painstakingly captured, analyzed and evaluated every action that makes up a football match, and it’s now coming together in a way that looks and feels better than ever before.” The newest addition to the FIFA Franchise, “HyperMotion Technology,” is centered on players running, turning, jumping and tackling, and the impact on gameplay has been significant. The technology adds new dimension to player movement and tactics, presents new ways to play with new moves, new animations and new highlights. Key Features: FIFA 22 uses an entirely new physics model (one the biggest advances of the series) that has significant performance impact. One of the first and most noticeable changes players will see is how Player Movement now reacts when they jump. At higher speeds, players jump more and land on their feet more naturally. They also jump higher and allow more freedom of movement as they recover after landing. The depth of the physics simulation is unmatched in FIFA games. There are more playful animations on the ball and in goal to provide more action and excitement. FIFA now also uses Netplay, providing for seamless server migration between local and Netplay connections, along with a dedicated server experience to provide the best single player and multiplayer experiences. There are several new moves available, which when used correctly can really shake up a match. There are new animations for set-pieces including everything from chips and corners to corner kicks and penalties.

HyperPitch technology has been completely re-built to provide pitch awareness in FIFA 22. Every player has a true elevation dependent wind, where the ball will follow the best trajectory with the correct strategy to aim it in the right direction. This allows for more natural movements on the pitch and creates movement that is more realistic. Match Day Experience On the newly re-designed home screen, a new pre-game experience allows the player to easily customize the game before the match begins. Players can adjust the game settings such as Skill Games, the playlist of all the created custom games, and the preferred kits and pitch. The match day experience is also significantly improved with a smoother transition from one match to the next. New Custom Content FIFA 22 introduces the all-new Online Seasons. Seasonal content is unlocked when a player reaches certain game-winning scores in FIFA Ultimate

I also would like it if they would have a full team of major stars like Lionel Messi, Cristiano Ronaldo, David Villa, etc. but the guess is they won't. Although I do think the down side is they won't have the Xavi, Xoro, Iniesta, Ozil, etc That said, I really do like them and have been playing a lot of Madden. Granted, you aren't getting 100% of them, but you can tell that they tried their best to give the game players for a FIFA fan. I'm just keeping track of how bad of a contract Real makes or doesn't make their current players have. _____ "If you are not down with the 24/7 lifestyle, you're not down with the life."
