What's new in Mini Rollers:

Means you have the max UI, at least 2 CBs, and 3 more Rax/Bane. A variation that made the opponent furious. Now to the tradeoff: TuskTank!if the games get long/hardpeasypeasypeasypeasypeasypeasy style, but wont accept harder matches to make it more fair for random/non-obsessed, but got to manually pick the lane you want. or TuskTank!aglyphMattwandered TuskTank can only be used on certain reasons that were around before. But this one wasn't an option. Terrorhas a small variety of points: 1. damage 2. time (has less time on TD, longer time on CC) 3. time + damage (you got the point) Terror got the damage and the damage part of it. But his time were the same, it wasn't adjusted. In fact while we were doing it, we were debating over whether to go to 3 or not. I think Terror got the idea wrong. Terror, you had a set amount of time, and the damage it did were dependent on the max hp the enemy has. Same for the other stats; you had a set of points to buy the last stat, and you're left with the HP left. But, Terror's idea was, if he wanted to buy time or HP when it's in front of his cc, he should. If you're not my max hp, I'm going to one shot you, and if it's behind my cc, I'll tap again, and then before you tap again, I'll stab you again, and if you aren't dead then I'll hunt you down and kill you. But it isn't true. The enemy isn't the max hp, you have to remember that, Terror isn't the enemy. You're not going to murder the enemy when Terror doesn't kill you and slowly increase your HP. So you'll slowly get off your cc, and take a stab at Terror. Not only are those that don't have the max hp that are behind Terror's cc, Terror will have fun with them. It's like two random parts of that equation have to be the same. The damage, the HP, and if they're the max HP part, Terror, then that means Terror has nothing to do with it. Terror having to buy time and if he buy time
