Pity Pit is a procedurally generated 2D platformer where you dig, build bombs, fight devils and demons. The game is based on the idea of "Jigsaw Puzzles" and the idea of watching live-action videos of famous movies. Indeed, each world is 100% hand-crafted and procedurally generated for each play. Every dungeon is unique and has a totally different layout. Every block is an object to be collected, every rock is a building to place or a demon to fight, every cavern has a unique transformation. Every object has a perfectly fitting place in the dungeon. Your goal in each stage of the game is to collect all the gems and to rescue your wife! The "Level of Hardcore" mode has been added : The game becomes more difficult (harder levels, changing of loot) after the 14th level. Each level must be beat, each floor has 12 blocks and its number is connected to the challenge of the first floor. There are 30 waves that must be beat in order to beat the levels. You may buy new powers with gems that you find while digging. In some waves, you will find lava that destroy you instantly without giving time for a savegame. You lose all your money in this case. The "Level of Hardcore" lets you do not lose money, even if you die! You start with only 3 lives.

However, your experience and money are saved on screen after a savegame and when you enter the game again. Every creature that is killed earns you some experience and helps to increase your level. Every level increased raises your HP by 10. A level up allows you to equip a new power as soon as you discover it. The game is made in pure independent programming in Java.

Important : The game is of course free, but you may buy in-game access by donating to my Patreon page. For any issues please feel free to contact me : Developer Notes =====
Want to play but can't figure out how to play? See how to play here: T-Rex requires a keyboard or gamepad, and you will need to go through each world one floor at a time. Use the keyboard arrow keys to move and Q to interact. Use

We're planning to release the game as 5 episodes; Three of them are already out for you to enjoy. Everything falls into slumber when winter comes, but not this forest. There's something wandering its snow-covered paths, lurking behind black trees and taking whatever it considers due. It leaves behind bizarre rumors of voices, calling you into the thicket, of faces, looking into your windows, of mysterious prints in the snow and a bunch of "child missing" posters. Those, who have heard the voice of the forest, are beyond help. Their only option is to sink deeper and deeper into the cold embrace of horror

What's new in Paddle Master VR:

Dream Alone is the second studio album by Canadian singer Avril Lavigne. It was released by Epic Records on April 20, 2004 in Australia and New Zealand. Dream Alone was released in Canada on May 4, 2004. It was released in the United States on October 25, 2005. The album was released as an international release through One Records, a division of EMI Australia. The album was produced by Nellee Hooper, Rodney "Darkchild" Jerkins, and Arista Records, and executive produced by Lavigne. Designed as a departure from her first album, Everything That Makes Her Beautiful (2002), Lavigne opted to expand on a more layered, electronic sound, with a musical style that was inspired by "80s, 90s and New Wave" music. Lavigne describes it as "straight out of the '80s and I love that. It was supposed to be edgy. It was supposed to make you go, 'Whoa', and I think it did that." Lavigne's vocal delivery was described by a reviewer as "rock-infused early '90s American alternative" with "edgy" soul and R&B influences. Dream Alone found mixed reviews from music critics. Although they admired Lavigne's musical style, reviewers criticised the production of the album, and Lavigne's vocal style was criticised for sounding less genuine than her previous work. While some critics praised Lavigne's decision to devote the album to a more sexualised tone, others criticised it for disrespecting the integrity of her work. In Australia, the album was certified gold two months after its release. Music and lyrics Dream Alone is a pop album that features electropop, techno, synthpop and new wave influences. "Complicated" incorporates elements of EDM with piano-based house elements. Hooper is credited as executive producer on eight of the album's nine songs. In addition, "Complicated" features programmed drums and samples taken from "Thru Your Eyes" by Larry Heard (produced by Scott Storch). Lavigne confirmed in an interview with Billboard magazine that "Complicated" was written for the film The 40-Year-Old Virgin, where the song was heard on the soundtrack. Lavigne cited "Complicated" as her favourite song from the album. The album also contains an interlude featuring elements of house music, a remix of "Breaking The Habit" by Pascal Gabriel, and of another song titled, "Suck It Up". Lav
