The Square (A few days ago, I received a copy of the December issue of Fast Company). They are the only magazine that I regularly read. And, in general, I'm very frustrated with this magazine. It reads like a hot, early summer day. It's fun, interesting, and informative. And then it cools down a little, but you don't want to put on any kind of coat, because it's just a little too nice out. It's not that I don't get a lot out of reading Fast Company. It's just that the last couple of issues, something has started to change. Now it reads more like the first day of spring, than spring. There's a lot of warmth, but it's not sticky and itchy; it's just right. It's like a light sweater; you don't want to take it off. It feels good.The main indications for tracheotomy in a community hospital. There are no reports in the literature on the use of tracheotomy in the community hospital setting, the results of which might help develop guidelines for its use. To assess the indications for, and the outcome of, tracheotomy in a community hospital, a retrospective review of the hospital charts for all individuals undergoing tracheotomy was conducted. A total of 225 patients were identified. Their average age was 56.8 years, and 85.4% were male. The major indications were airway management (112 patients [49.8%]), emergency airway management (36 patients [16.0%]; most often for suspected foreign body in the airway), and neoplasms (40 patients [17.
