• You can generate a message and send it to a remote station • You can change the settings on the remote station to receive the generated message • You can type the message on a paddle Category: Remote Control Category: Software Programs Category: Windows email softwareQ: How to put the image size to border in HTML I am using border-image to add an image to a table. For such, I use this code: table.table-bordered tr, table.table-bordered td { border-width: 1px; border-style: solid; border-color: #DFDFDF; border-image: url('images/tableBg.png') 1; border-image-slice: 1; } Everything is ok when I have a small image. When my image is large, if I set the width of the border I have the same size of the image, but if I set the width as "auto" the image increase like a rubber band and then gets out of the table, see the image. How to get the image size to border? A: If I understand your problem correctly, you have some large image file, which you want to use as table's border. If yes, just add a few px to border's width. table.table-bordered tr, table.table-bordered td { border-width: 1px; border-style: solid; border-color: #DFDFDF; border-image: url('images/tableBg.png') 1; border-image-slice: 1; border-width: 1px; } It works fine for me (cross-browser, I haven't tested it on IE though). If you're not sure how many px you need, try increasing it by 10 px at a time, until it looks right. Q: How to add string to JSON array
