I am trying to create a test of little mousefriends. I would like to have the background of the first cell colour green if the value is 1, red if the value is 0. Then the second cell green if the value is 1 and red if the value is 0. I have attempted doing this by manually setting the colours, but was wondering if there is a more efficient way of doing this? This is the code I've come up with: .lbl { color: #fff; padding: 15px; } .lbl.green { background-color: #00ac00; } .lbl.red { background-color: #fff037; } .lbl.green.sensor { color: #00ac00; font-size: 11px; padding: 10px; } .lbl.red.sensor { color: #fff037; font-size: 11px; padding: 10px; } 0
