Police had blocked off the queue of passengers waiting to go through passport control on the busy morning runway after the temporary steel barrier was erected. Organisers of the free event said the construction work was causing enormous delays. A police spokesperson said no further work would be carried out until the restrictions had been lifted. Hundreds of people, mainly family groups, waited on the tarmac for several hours. The delay came as 22 children and young people from the Manchester-based children's charity, StreetGames, were being thanked in a series of carefully-planned performances on Friday. They included the popular pupils' dance troupe, the Mad Hats. Image caption Playground dance routines are among the events planned for the children A spokesman for Greater Manchester Police said: "It was a legal injunction from the airport which meant no work could be done until the order was lifted and a 'quiet time' had been declared.
