In the world of Elden Ring, the lands between the nations of the light and darkness lie on the brink of a war that will either extinguish both realms or bring them together. To prevent this, each nation has created an organization that guides and develops its respective province. The south has five such organizations known as Lords, and their respective lands are called the Lands Between. They specialize in various elements such as battle magic and weapons, and each one seeks to shape their lands' destinies to their own liking. In order to shape their respective lands, each Lord needs to equip their people with the proper equipment through Guilds, and then train them to be a class. There are a variety of classes, and the more powerful a Lord is, the more people they can equip at once. Through these duties, the Lords shape their lands, but they must also deal with other dangers such as enemies in the Lands Beyond and an invasion force from the evil nation of Zerudaemm. Through battles, grinding, and gathering materials, the protagonist from another world named Suuwaka will rise in the Lands Between. A final note from Genesic Games.

Making RPGs has always been Genesic's favorite hobby and is also what drives us constantly to create more and new titles. They bring a smile to our daily lives! Toward the end of 2016, we started having discussions about future titles. Although Genesic Games' mission is very limited, as we do not intend to release every game idea. PADGI TEKKEN 10 's popularity inspired us to start down a new path: "fantasy action RPG" The development team specializes in making games similar to Tekken, but actually play as a free 2D action game. The Trails of Tarnished is the first title to the new Tarnished fantasy series. We sincerely hope that people will be able to experience the excitements of exciting RPG elements. We hope you will enjoy your journey in the world of the Trails of Tarnished! Until then, we await all of your feedback. More information will be revealed over time. Thank you.

Another hero, and another new fandom, with some new design work. Ahhh but WONDERFUL gaming on the vggadget side. A bit of a filler this time round but has some very nice things about it, for the most part. Like most of them, the techy bits are a bit questionable and the menus could stand a rehaul. But that's not my issue. Let me explain. With this batch, you have all the

"This is the third game in the series that has completed 60% of the development in a year." #1 roleplaying game site in USA: "This game has the potential to become a genre defining game, an experience that no game before it has been able to offer. " Risen review: "Risen is a game that incorporates roleplaying, action, and adventure in a story that is serious without being overly-serious, fun without being jokey, and the core of the title isn't even a fantasy setting. It's a great mix of genres, and a game that might not have existed before if it was developed by another studio. " Closers: ("Elden Ring is a cut above. It's a game that will satisfy the fan of roleplaying games and action games, as well as the fan of fantasy." Paxetopia: ("Elden Ring is a Fantasy Roleplaying game that's worth the wait!" What's new:

Just got the game a few days ago. I'm in love with the game overall however, i have an issue with the crafting system in which you have to have an item in your chest when equipping a component in order to gain access to items from the chest at the warehouse (farm). For instance, zeny has to item be in your chest in order for you to have access to the machine shop crafting machine, and 1,000 steel. However, if I had sufficient zeny to be able to buy in excess of 1,000 steel at once, I would have enough to purchase the components for the crafting machine right away. So, if that item was armor, and I was missing the leather, I can't equip the leather without zeny, but I have the leather and i am putting the zeny in the chest, that may not be what should be happening. So when I equip the armor, I have that item in my chest, but my ability to output items from the warehouse is using my leather as a parameter. If that doesn't make sense, that is all. I have been going back and forth on some of the quests, and I have not given up on this game, but I want to play the crafting the way I want. If you have a specific chest/enchantment item that you could not get to in a character build if it was in a store house. Then I'd see if you can petition for that to be added later in the game or if you can modify your current way of doing things. It's the best way that I can think of things being done. Right now, you need the item in your chest(storehouse in the tutorial) so you can gain access to the crafting system and spawn in a vehicle or mount. You can check your stocking levels(stays on screen when you click on them) before you leave your storehouse to make sure that you can enter your destination. I'm using 'programming' with the components to make sure that all chests and storehouses have that feature implemented into their code so I can get the storehouse to be functional while logged in (therefore not requiring any inventory clicking to gain access while in the middle of the game). Using this method, you can remove the need to have the blueprint in your inventory while you are logged in. I can provide some direct quotes from the source code to show you what I'm using. I can't provide any

Yellow Fever Policy The Department of Health and Human Services' Communicable Disease Control program conducts systematic measures to identify, verify, and protect against the potential spread of yellow fever in Puerto Rico. These measures include gaining a better understanding of the risks, which are based upon local concerns as well as federal concerns related to military operations. This website highlights certain policies that related to the yellow fever vaccine's use when visiting Puerto Rico. Vaccination Tourism is a valuable industry in Puerto Rico and service providers often encounter groups comprised of foreign nationals. The United States Information Agency has issued comprehensive travel advisories related to the Caribbean region. When visiting the West Indies, you are advised to maintain these recommendations in order to avoid contracting yellow fever while visiting Puerto Rico. Although yellow fever has not been present on the island for over a century, tourists from other regions may become ill or die from the disease. As a result, some of the following recommendations also apply to the United States. For visitors who are elderly, pregnant or who are immune-compromised, yellow fever vaccination is recommended for all areas where mosquitoes are active during the time travelers arrive or depart Puerto Rico. This includes the cities of San Juan and Ponce and all other areas where visitors spend time in and around the relative rural regions. Local
