Screencast is a software application that enables you to record and playback webcam and microphone voice, and other computer audio/video.Q: Are payments to websites or web services taxed? I have been developing applications that accept payment through credit card and have, so far, been treating the payments as income from the sale of goods, and not subject to income tax on that. Now that the time has come to actually make the sale, and I am writing the cheque to the provider, I am having some second thoughts. The payment service I use supports both credit cards and cash payments. I would like to know if the payment service charge this the payment as income, or whether it's treated as a transaction between a business and a consumer, therefore not subject to tax. I'd like the advice of someone who has been in the same situation before. A: Payments are taxed, just as if you were selling products: For services performed in Canada, receipts of income received for services paid for in Canada are subject to personal income tax even if the receipts are received outside Canada So, you pay the service provider, and then you make the payment. You should be able to point to the receipt and show that the payment was made. However, certain types of payments (e.g., charitable contributions) are deducted, and so you'll want to make sure you use the correct method for claiming those deductions on your taxes (if you choose to itemize). If you're looking for some more details, see e.g.: How do I deduct a credit card payment? How do I get a tax refund for my tax deductions? How can I deduct charitable contributions? or the Canada Revenue Agency web site. Q: Convert string into date This is my code, when i run my code it show error message ParseInt() year is required. I'm trying to convert string into date so i want to remove this error. this is my code, public string datepicker() { DateTime dt = DateTime.Now.AddYears(-1); string date = dt.ToString("dd-MM-yyyy"); e79caf774b

Various patterns can be stamped out using multiple stamps from the same image. To save on time or if your so For this example, IÂ create a straight line for this same stamp that can be cut and pulled off later in the pattern. I used a textured fabric to cover the remainder. If you donÂ didnÂ t stretch or cut the fabric, youÂ would be able to use aÂ larger area. CopyrightÂ 2009Â . All Rights Reserved. Get Pinterest Email. Some Pins that may interest you:. The new iPad helps you get things done, while iPadÂ I also created a fussy cutting in the form of hair. I used a doorknob and decorative papers as my base. I then created a beaded necklace by using beads from the Craft Fair collection and then pulled off the detail with a separate stamp. This is a good way to make your beads look realistic. My fabric and paper settings for this stamp were: Resize to Magnitude or MP resolution at 100%. I wanted to use an etched image for one side of this stamp. I was able to do that using Screencast Pro 2.0 and the "Etch" function in the main toolbar on the bottom of the screen. I selected the first layer and then the background color and then began the etching process.
