I am trying to show / hide the elements inside a div using the CSS3 animation: CSS: .animation { animation-name: mymove; animation-duration: 3s; animation-fill-mode: both; animation-timing-function: linear; } @keyframes mymove { 0% { opacity: 0; } 100% { opacity: 1; } } HTML content This is what I want to be displayed: This is what I get on the screen: I have been trying to find out what I am doing wrong but I could not. Could anyone help me please? A: You are using the name mymove, which will limit the animation to the element you are applying it to. You need to use the name animation, without a dot: animation: mymove 3s linear; Q: simplifying exponential function Is there any process to simplify this:
$$\exp(x-y)^{\frac{1}{z}} = \exp(y+\frac{x}{z})$$
 I want to transform it into one or two different forms. Any ideas? A: For your first question, if \$a, b, c\$ are real numbers, then $$\exp(a+b) = \exp(a)\exp(b)$$ so if \$a=x-y\$, \$b = y\$ and \$c = \frac{1}{z}\$, then $$\exp\left(x-y+\frac{1}{z}\right) = \exp(y+\frac{x}{z}).$$ glycogen in lymphocytes and mononuclear cells in rats fed a high cholesterol diet. Male rats were divided into two groups according to treatment (Chl-treated or Chl-fed control). Both groups received a high cholesterol diet, but the two diets were different: both animals received 30% of energy from cholesterol, but the Chl-treated group received low-fat standard rat chow throughout the experiment whereas the control group received 30% of energy from cholesterol, a high-fat control diet, throughout the experiment. Lymphocyte and mononuclear cells (MNC) were isolated from spleen and mesenteric lymph nodes and the concentrations of ethanol, cholesterol, triglycerides, and glycogen in the cells were determined. The results indicated that concentrations of ethanol and cholesterol were increased by the treatment in the spleen but not in the lymph nodes. Concentrations of triglycerides in the spleen were decreased whereas the concentrations of glycogen were increased. The plasma concentrations of cholesterol and triglycerides were increased by the treatment, and the concentrations of cholesterol and triglycerides in liver were also increased. The results indicate that, in the spleen, ethanol increases in a direct or indirect manner, and cholesterol increases in both a direct or indirect manner. The results also indicate that the increase in cholesterol in liver may be related to the increase in glycogen in the spleen. United States Court of Appeals 6d1f23a050
