Paranormal.Activity.(1-2009).(2-2010).(3 2011).avi.720P.HD.NLsubs.The experience of cancer progression in a patient with keratoconjunctivitis sicca. A 65-year-old woman with positive serological findings for human immunodeficiency virus was diagnosed with stage IIIB serous carcinoma of the left fallopian tube. The diagnosis was established when the patient had an ovarian cyst detected during a routine gynecological examination. In spite of receiving 3 courses of paclitaxel and carboplatin as well as laser surgery followed by radiotherapy, the patient died of progressive disease in December 2003. At autopsy, metastatic adenocarcinoma was found to have spread to the spleen, lymph nodes, liver, lungs, and bone. However, no definite tumor was found in the left oophorectomy specimen and the right fallopian tube.

The histology of the tumor seemed to be compatible with serous carcinoma of the fallopian tube. This experience suggests that keratoconjunctivitis sicca can occur in patients with cancer.10/14/06 — As an Iraqi resistance force fights for the city of Fallujah, 40 bodies of murdered Sunnis have been dumped in the river outside the city. They are just the most recent mass murder of Sunnis in the aftermath of the U.S. occupation. Late one night early this month, 11 hooded gunmen swept into three Sunni neighborhoods in the city. They stopped men on the streets, dragged them from their homes, and shot them in the head. At least 46 Sunnis were killed. Later that day, the same thing happened in nearby Ramadi. The victims are no longer “terrorists”. But Al-Jazeera television reports that the killers are Sunni militants who attacked the Shiite-dominated, pro-American government security forces. Once in control of Fallujah, Sunni insurgents have brutalized Shiite residents and feared Sunnis. This murder — just the most recent of a series — shows a chilling disregard for human life. Unfortunately, the West doesn’
